Are you one of the 7528 patients who have been treated at the Barre City hospital since the new building was erected in 1916? Or one of the 2063 who were housed in the old Perry home, which is now the nurses' dormitory? If so, come back and make the hospital a visit on Friday from 1 to 5. Friday is national hospital day and your hospital is celebrating it by holding open house and a baby show. Perhaps the nurse who took care of you will be there, for members of the Alumnae association of the Barre City hospital training school are to show visitors through the building and serve tea. The following facts are of interest: Number of patients in both buildings June 11, 1907, to May 8, 1922, 9594; number of births in both buildings, 558; number of operations since June 11, 1907, 1483. If you have not been a patient but are interested in the hospital, you are invited to visit it on Friday of this week.

Interest in Barre is keen over the meeting of the Older Girls of Vermont, which opens in St. Johnsbury Friday afternoon and the various churches have their delegates elected. They are expected to be 500 delegates in St. Johnsbury during the convention.
